From the RAMBLER.

Come, ſoon or late, Death's undetermin'd Day,
This mortal Being only can decay.
WELSTED.

IT ſeems to be the Fate of Man to ſeek all his Conſolations in Futurity. The Time preſent is ſeldom able to fill Deſire or Imagination with immediate Enjoyment, and we are forced to ſupply its Deficiences by Recollection or Anticipation.

EVERY one has ſo often detected the Fallaciouſneſs of Hope, and the Inconvenience of teaching himſelf to expect what a Thouſand Accidents may preclude, that, when Time has abated the Confidence with which Youth ruſhes out to take Poſſeſſion of the World, we endeavour, or wiſh, to find Entertainment in the Review of Life, and to repoſe upon real Facts, and certain Experience. This is perhaps one Reaſon among many, why Age delights in Narratives.

BUT ſo full is the World of Calamity, that every Source of Pleaſure is polluted, and every Retirement of Tranquility diſturbed. When Time has ſupplied us with Events ſufficient to employ our Thoughts, it has mingled them with ſo many Diſaſters, that we ſhrink from their Remembrance, dread their Intruſion upon our Minds, and fly from them to Company and Diverſions.

NO Man paſt the middle Point of Life can ſit down to Feaſt upon the Pleaſures of Youth without finding the Banquet imbittered by the Cup of Sorrow. Many Days of harmleſs Frolick, or Nights of honeſt Feſtivity will perhaps recur; he may revive lucky Accidents, and pleaſing Extravagancies; or, if he has been engaged in Scenes of Action, and acquainted with Affairs of Difficulty and Viciſſitudes of Fortune, may enjoy the nobler Pleaſure of looking back upon Diſtreſs firmly ſupported, Danger reſolutely encountered, and Oppoſition artfully defeated. Eneas properly comforts his Companions, when after the Horrors of a Storm they have landed on an unknown and deſolate Country, with the Hope that their Miſeries will be at ſome diſtant Time recounted with Delight. There are few higher Gratifications than that of Reflection on ſurmounted Evils, when they were not incurred nor protracted by our Fault, and neither reproached us with Cowardice, nor Guilt.

BUT this Felicity is almoſt always abated by the Reflection, that they, with whom we ſhould be moſt pleaſed to ſhare it, are now in the Grave. A few Years make ſuch Havock in human Generations, that we ſoon ſee ourſelves deprived of thoſe with whom we entered the World, and whom the Participation of Pleaſures or Fatigues endeared to our Remembrance. The Man of Enterpriſe, recounts his Adventures and Expedients, but is forced at the cloſe of the Relation to pay a Sigh to the Names of thoſe that contributed to his Succeſs; he that paſſes his Life among the gayer Part of Mankind, has quickly his Remembrance ſtored with Remarks and Repartees of Wits, whoſe Sprightlineſs and Merriment are now loſt in perpetual Silence; the Trader whoſe Induſtry has ſupplied the Want of Inheritance, when he ſits down to enjoy his Fortune, repines in ſolitary Plenty at the Abſence of Companions with whom he had planned out Amuſements for his latter Years; and the Scholar, whoſe Merit, after a long Series of Efforts raiſes him from Obſcurity, looks round in vain from his Exaltation for his old Friends or Enemies, whoſe Applauſe or Mortification would heighten his Triumph.

AMONG Martial's Requiſites to Happineſs is, Res non parta labore ſed relicta, an Eſtate not gained by Induſtry but left by Inheritance. It is neceſſary to the Completion of every Good, that it be timely obtained, for whatever comes at the cloſe of Life, will come too late to give much Delight. Yet all human Happineſs, has its Imperfections. Of what we do not gain for ourſelves we have only a faint and imperfect Fruition, becauſe we cannot compare the Difference between Want and Poſſeſſion, or at leaſt can derive from it no Conviction of our own Abilities, nor any Increaſe of Self-Eſteem; what we acquire by Bravery or Science, by mental or corporeal Diligence, comes at laſt when we cannot communicate, and therefore cannot enjoy it.

THUS every Period of Life is obliged to borrow its Happineſs from the Time to come. In Youth we have nothing paſt to entertain us, and in Age, we derive little from Retroſpect but hopeleſs Sorrow. Yet the Future likewiſe has its Limits, which the Imagination dreads to approach, but which we know to be not far diſtant. The Loſs of our Friends and Companions, impreſſes hourly upon us the Neceſſity of our own Departure: We know that the Schemes of Man are quickly at an end, that we muſt ſoon lie down in the Grave with the forgotten Multitudes of former Ages, and yield our Place to others, who, like us, ſhall be driven awhile by Hope or Fear about the Surface of the Earth, and then like us be loſt in the Shades of Death.

BEYOND this Termination of our corporeal Exiſtence, we are therefore obliged to extend our Hopes, and almoſt every Man indulges his Imagination with ſomething, which is not to happen till he has changed his Manner of Exiſtence: Some amuſe themſelves with Entails and Settlements, provide for the Increaſe and Perpetuation of Families and Honours, or contrive to obviate the Diſſipation of the Fortunes, which it has been their Buſineſs to accumulate: Others more refined or exalted congratulate their own Hearts upon the future Extent of their Reputation, the Reverence of diſtant Nations, and the Gratitude of unprejudiced Poſterity.

THEY whoſe Souls are ſo chained down to Coffers and Tenements, that they cannot conceive a State in which they ſhall look upon them with leſs Solicitude, are ſeldom attentive to Remonſtrance, or flexible to Arguments; but the Votaries of Fame are capable of Reflection, and, therefore, may be fitly called to conſider the Probability of their Expectations.

WHETHER to be remembered in remote Times be worthy of a wiſe Man's Wiſh, has not yet been ſatisfactorily decided, and indeed, to be long remembered, can happen to ſo ſmall a Number, that the Bulk of Mankind has very little Intereſt in the Queſtion. There is never room in the World for more than a certain Quantity, or Meaſure of Renown. The neceſſary Buſineſs of Life, the immediate Pleaſures or Pains of every Condition, leave us not Leiſure beyond a fixed Proportion for Contemplations which do not forcibly Influence our preſent Welfare. When this Vacuity is filled no Characters can be admitted into the Circulation of Fame, but by occupying the Place of ſome that muſt be thruſt into Oblivion. The Eye of the Mind, like that of the Body, can only extend its View to new Objects, by loſing Sight of thoſe which are now before it.

REPUTATION is therefore a Meteor which blazes a while and diſappears for ever; and if we except a few tranſcendent and invincible Names, which no Revolutions of Opinion or Length of Time is able to ſuppreſs; all thoſe that engage our Thoughts, or diverſify our Converſation, are every Moment haſting to Obſcurity, as new Favourites are adopted by Faſhion.

IT is not therefore from this World that any Ray of Comfort can proceed, to chear the Gloom of the laſt Hour. But Futurity has ſtill its Proſpects; there is yet Happineſs in Reſerve, which, if we transfer our Attention to it, will ſupport us in the Pains of Diſeaſe, and the Languor of Decay. This Happineſs we may expect with Confidence, becauſe it is out of the Power of Chance, and may be attained by all that ſincerely deſire and earneſtly purſue it. On this therefore every Mind ought finally to reſt. Hope is the chief Bleſſing of Man, and that Hope only is rational, of which we are certain that it cannot deceive us.

From the CONNOISSEUR,

MR. Fitzworm, a Correſpondent of Mr. Town's, after ridiculing Heraldry, and the Boaſts of Anceſtry, ſays, "The Pride of Anceſtry, and the Deſire of continuing our Lineage, when they tend to an Incitement of virtuous and noble Actions, are undoubtedly laudable; and I ſhould perhaps have indulged myſelf in the pleaſing Reflection, had not a particular Story in a French Novel, which I lately met with, put a ſtop to all vain Glories that can poſſibly be deduced from a long Race of Progenitors.

A Nobleman of an ancient Houſe, of very high Rank, and great Fortune, ſays the Noveliſt, died ſuddenly, and without being permitted to ſtop at Purgatory, was ſent down immediately into Hell. He had not been long there, before he met with his Coachman Thomas, who, like his noble Maſter, was gnaſhing his Teeth among the Damned. Thomas, ſurprized to behold his Lordſhip amidſt the Sharpers, Thieves, Pickpockets, and all the Canaille of Hell, ſtarted and cried out in a Tone of Admiration, Is it poſſible that I ſee my late Maſter among Lucifer's Tribe of Beggars, Rogues, and Pilferers? How much am I aſtoniſhed to find your Lordſhip in this Place? Your Lordſhip, whoſe Generoſity was ſo great, whoſe affluent Houſekeeping drew ſuch Crowds of Nobility, Gentry, and Friends to your Table, and within your Gates, and whoſe fine Taſte employed ſuch Numbers of Poor in your Gardens, by building Temples and Obeliſks, and by forming Lakes of Water, that ſeemed to vie with the largeſt Oceans of the Creation. Pray, my Lord, if I may be ſo bold, what Crime has brought your Lordſhip into this curſed Aſſembly?—Ah, Thomas, replied his Lordſhip with his uſual Condeſcenſion, I have been ſent hither for having defrauded my Royal Maſter, and cheating the Widows and Fatherleſs, ſolely to enrich, and purchaſe Titles, Honours and Eſtates, for that ungateful Raſcal my only Son. But prithee, Thomas, tell me, as thou didſt always ſeem to be an honeſt, careful, ſober Servant, what brought thee hither? Alas! my noble Lord, replied Thomas, I was ſent hither for begetting that Son."

Mr. TOWN adds,

I muſt agree with my Correſpondent, that the Study of Heraldry is at preſent in very little Repute among us; and our Nobility are more anxious about preſerving the Genealogy of their Horſes, than of their own Family. Whatever Value their Progenitors may have formerly ſet upon their Blood, it is now found to be of no Value, when put into the Scale and weighed againſt ſolid Plebeian Gold: Nor would the moſt illuſtrious Deſcendant from Cadwallader, or the Iriſh Kings, ſcruple to debaſe his Lineage by an Alliance with the Daughter of a City-plumb, tho' all her Anceſtors were Yeomen, and none of her Family ever bore Arms. Titles of Quality, when the Owners have no other Merit to recommend them, are of no more Eſtimation, than thoſe which the Courteſy of the Vulgar have beſtowed on the Deformed: And when I look over a long Tree of Deſcent, I ſometimes fancy I can diſcover the real Characters of Sharpers, Reprobates, and Plunderers of their Country, concealed under the Titles of Dukes, Earls, and Viſcounts.

It is well known, that the very Servants, in the Abſence of their Maſters, aſſume the ſame Titles; and and Tom or Harry, the Butler or Groom of his Grace, is always my Lord Duke in the Kitchen or Stables. For this Reason I have thought proper to present my Reader with the Pedigree of a Footman, drawn up in the same sounding Titles, as are so pompously displayed on these Occasions: And I dare say it will appear no less illustrious, than the Pedigrees of many Families, which are neither celebrated for their Actions, nor distinguished by their Virtues.

The Family of the Skips, or Skip-kennels, is very ancient and noble. The Founder of it Maitre Jaques, came into England with the Dutchess of Mazarine. He was Son of a Prince of the Blood, his Mother one of the Mesdames of France: This Family is therefore related to the most illustrious Maitres d'Hotél and Valets de Chambre of that Kingdom. Jaques had Issue two Sons, viz. Robert and Paul; of whom Paul the youngest was invested with the Purple before he was eighteen, and made a Bishop, and soon after became an Archbishop. Robert the elder, came to be a Duke, but died without Issue: Paul, the Archbishop, left behind him an only Daughter, Barbara, base-born, who was afterwards Maid of Honour; and inter-marrying with a Lord of the Bed-Chamber, had a very numerous Issue by him, viz. Rebecca, born a Week after their Marriage, and died young; Joseph, first a Squire, afterwards knighted, High-Sheriff of a County, and Colonel of the Militia; Peter, raised from a Cabbin-Boy, to a Lord of the Admiralty; William, a Faggot in the first Regiment of Guards, and a Brigadier; Thomas, at first an Earl's eldest Son, and afterwards Lord Mayor of the City of London. The several Branches of this Family were no less distinguished for their illustrious Progeny. Jaques the Founder, first quartered Lace on his Coat, and Robert added the Shoulder-knot. Some of them, indeed, met with great Trouble: Archbishop Paul lost his See for getting a Cook-maid with Child; Barbara, the Maid of Honour, was dismissed with a big Belly; Brigadier William was killed by a Chairman in a pitched Battle at an Ale-house; the Lord of the Admiralty was transported for seven Years; and Duke Robert had the Misfortune to be hanged at Tyburn.

ANNAPOLIS, July 15.

By Capt. Southcot, who arrived at Philadelphia the 7th of this Instant, in a Passage of 7 Weeks from Bristol, we have the following Advices, viz.

From the LONDON GAZETTE of May 8.

PARIS, May 1.

WE have received Advice by an Officer dispatched from Marshal Richelieu, that on the 18th past M. de la Galissoniere's Squadron cast Anchor before Cindadella, in the Island of Minorca; that on that and the following Day the Troops disembarked, without Opposition; and the English being retired to the Fort of St. Philips, our Troops were proceeding to the Attack of it.

Admiralty-Office, May 8. By a Letter from the Hon. Augustus Hervey, Captain of his Majesty's Ship the Phœnix, dated from Villa Franca, April the 18th, there is Advice, That he was sent from Mahon by Commodore Edgcombe to Leghorn, to take in Stores, and had proceeded to Villa Franca, in order to receive any Letters he should find there from England for the Commodore; that finding the French Fleet had sailed from Toulon on the 13th for the Island of Minorca, he intended sailing that Evening, and endeavour to get into the Harbour of Mahon; or if it should be so blocked up by the French as to make it impossible for his Ship to get in, he should try in some other Manner to convey to Mr. Edgcombe the News of a Fleet being actually sailed from England for their Relief, and endeavour to get the Commodore's Orders for his farther Proceedings: That if he should not be able to receive those Orders, he would then go away for Gibraltar, and cruize in the Gut, in Hopes of meeting the English Fleet. He sends also the following List of the French Fleet, viz. Line of Battle Ships, Le Foudroyant, of 80 Guns, La Couronne 74, Le Redoubtable 74, L'Hercule 64, L'Achille 64, Le Triton 64, Le Lyon 64, Le Contant 64, Le Sage 64, and L'Alcion 50; Frigates; La Pomone, of 36 Guns, Le Zephir 30, La Rose 30, La Gracieuse 24, and La Nymphe, of 20 Guns. About 180 Transports, 90 of which are Tartans and Settees: They have a Marjoca Xebeque, which is said to serve as a Pilot for the Craft.

He adds, That the whole Number of Troops, Labourers, &c. &c. shut up in the Castle of St. Philips, amounted to 5000 Men; that the French Army doth not exceed 11,000; so that he thinks the Attack upon the Castle of St. Philips will scarce be effectual, before the Fleet, under Admiral Byng, will probably arrive; and that all necessary Precautions were taking when he left Mahon for the Defence of Fort St. Philips, and the best Disposition made for that of the Harbour.

Marseilles, April 23. The Master of a French Ship, which arrived here on Tuesday from Malaga, reports, that on the 17th of this Month, being about 20 Leagues from Minorca, he heard the Report of Cannon, which continued some Time: And Yesterday arrived a Swedish Vessel, whose Captain declares that the 17th, about 16 Leagues from Minorca, he also heard a very loud and continued Firing; whereof they have both made Deposition on Oath.

Marseilles, April 24. The Master of a Genoese Tartan, just come into Harbour, reports to have seen the English Fleet, commanded by Commodore Edgcombe, cruizing off the Island of Minorca; that the English Fleet had purposely sailed out of Mahon to avoid being burnt in the Harbour, the French Troops being landed on the opposite Part of the Island, and coming on with a Force by no Means in the Power of the English to withstand. At the same Time we hear that the English Fleet have sunk three Transports, laden with Provisions.

LONDON, May 8.

There is Advice from good Hands that Admiral Byng was off Malaga the 18th of April, and had been joined by Commodore Keppel with three Ships of the Line.

The Duke of Anjou, from Rochelle for Louisburg, loaded with Stores, and the Grand St. Ursin, Breseau, from Rochelle for Canada, loaded with Provisions, and 130 Soldiers on board, are both taken by the Sheerness Man of War, and sent into Plymouth.

A few Days ago the Ambuscade Man of War, of 40 Guns, went to look into Havre de Grace, and two French Frigates, of 30 Guns each, slipt their Cables, came up with her, and poured a Broadside into her, which killed 30 Men and would certainly have taken her, had not the Isis, of 60 Guns, who was then in Sight, bore down towards the Frenchmen, and made them retreat into Port.

It is reported that Commodore Keppel had landed 5000 Men in Minorca before the Arrival of the French; and that the Person who brought this Account met Admiral Byng with a large Fleet, within a Day's Sail of that Island.

Mr. Armstrong believes that the French are not landed at Minorca, nor have any such Intentions. If they really are landed, he says that the Garrison is, by Order of the Government, constantly provided with every Kind of Provision sufficient to sustain a Siege of two Years.

'Tis said that the French Transports, from on board which the Troops were landed at Minorca in 36 Hours, were sent back to Toulon, and that the Men of War had ranged themselves to engage Admiral Byng, who was to be joined by three Ships of the Line at Gibraltar, whose Squadron then would be equal to that of the French. Also, that the Crews of the Men of War in Port-Mahon Harbour, under Commodore Edgcombe, had joined the Garrison, which was 6000 strong, and well stored with Provisions, every way prepared for a vigorous Defence, and, at least, able to hold out two Months.

Letters from Brussels, by a Flanders Mail, which arrived Yesterday, say, that the Marshal Duke de Richelieu had wrote to Court, since his Arrival at Minorca, for a Reinforcement of 4000 Troops; which, they say, are to be sent to him under Convoy of seven Ships of the Line and three Frigates, actually fitting out at Toulon.

We this Moment hear an Express is arrived with Advice of Admiral Byng's Arrival at Minorca on the 24th of April.

There are Letters in Town which mention the Number of the French that landed at Minorca amounted to 26,000.

On Monday next the Officers belonging to the American Regiments are to embark in the Downs for their respective Corps.

May 11. We hear that War will be declared against France in a few Days, and that a Bill will be immediately brought into the House for selling off the French Prizes; and some People pretend, that War was to be proclaimed in France as Yesterday, or some Day this Week.

According to some Advices by Yesterday's French Mail, the French have re-embarked the Artillery which they had landed at Cindadella in Minorca, in order to bring it round to Port-Mahon, because they found the Roads too bad to drag it quite the Length of the Island to St. Philips's Fort; and moreover, the Weather was so hot, that the Cattle fainted under the Labour; so that our Enemy will thereby be retarded four or five Days at least in their Operations.

On Friday the Earl of Loudon kiss'd his Majesty's Hand on his Departure for America.

Extract of a Letter from Portsmouth, May 10.

"Saturday Morning arrived Sir Edward Hawke in the St. George, with the Edinburgh, Medway, Dunkirk, and Torbay. The Vanguard, Northumberland, and Rochester, are gone into Plymouth. The Remainder of his Fleet he left to cruise with Admiral Boscawen, whose Fleet now consists of eighteen Sail of the Line besides Frigates. The Torbay sprung her Foremast, and is come into Harbour to clean.

"The Prince George is ordered for the Mediterranean without Docking. The Nassau is sailed to Spithead to go with her. And Yesterday Orders arrived for the Tilbury to clean, and then proceed with the above Ships, together with the Hampton-Court, Capt. Broderick, to reinforce Admiral Byng."

May 13. It is said an Express arrived this Morning, by Way of the Groyne, from Sir Benjamin Keene, his Majesty's Minister at the Court of Madrid, which has brought a Confirmation of the French landing on the Island of Minorca. It is farther said, that their Army amounts to 18000 Men.

According to some private Letters from France, the Trenches were to be opened before St. Philips's Fort the 25th of last Month, and their Batteries in Readiness to play four Days after.

We hear that an Express is come from Admiral Byng, with Advice, that he arrived the 29th past at Minorca, with the Squadron under his Command.

Yesterday it was reported that some French Men of War had passed the Streights under English Colours.

Several Regiments are to march from Kent and Surry, to encamp on Salisbury Plain.

This Day the Right Honourable the Earl of Loudon, and several Officers, set out for Portsmouth, in order to embark for America.

Extract of a Letter from Portsmouth, May 12.

"Since my last the Isis is ordered to sail for the Mediterranean, with an Express to Admiral Byng, and, if the Wind permits, she sails this Afternoon.

The Prince George and Nassau will sail the first fair Wind for the Mediterranean.

The Admirals Byng and West have but ten Ships of the Line with them, viz. the Ramillies, of 90 Guns, Buckingham, Intrepide, Captain, Culloden, Lancaster, Trident, Revenge, of 70 Guns each, and the Defiance and Kingston of 60 Guns.

The Ships under the Command of Commodore Edgecombe at Minorca, are, the Princess Louisa, of 60 Guns, the Deptford and Portland, of 50, the Chesterfield of 40, and the Dolphin and Experiment, of 20 Guns, and two Sloops."

BRISTOL, May 15.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in London, to his Friend in this City, dated May 13.

"A Person came Post this Morning from Paris, and arrived at the Duke of N-------le's; he left that Place on Saturday, in order to bring an Account of an Express which had just arrived from the Duke de Richelieu to the King of France; wherein that General desires the King to send him more Men, for unless he doth, he cannot go on with the Reduction of Minorca. That Commodore Edgecombe's Sailors had erected a Battery of 40 Pieces of Cannon, and had entrenched themselves before the Castle of St. Philips, and that they fired like DEVILS; (which was the Expression in Richelieu's Letter) and had killed a Lieutenant-General, and 1200 Men; and that he could not dislodge them."

PHILADELPHIA, July 8.

Extract of a Letter from Bristol, May 15, 1756.

"Our Member, Mr. Nugent, has wrote a public Letter this Day to our Merchants to prepare for Letters of Marque; for that the Government will grant them to any that apply for them next Week."

From Bethlehem we learn, that some friendly Indians have lately arrived there from Diaoga, and advise, that some Hundreds of our Enemy Indians, of different Nations, in and about the Allegany Mountains, are gone to hold a Council, and form themselves into a Body, in order to come down and harrass this and the neighbouring Provinces; and that a Number of disaffected Indians from Diaoga were gone to join them.

ANNAPOLIS, July 15.

Copy of a Letter from Virginia, dated July 9, 1756.

"On Sunday the 27th of June at Sun-rise, the Indians took a Negro belonging to one Collings (at Fort Peircall, commanded by Capt. William Baylis, and garrisoned by the Prince-William Militia), and immediately gave the War Whoop: Captain Baylis took 28 Men out, which was all he could spare from the Fort, and formed them in two Indian Files, commanded the first Division himself, with an advanced Guard and Flankers, gave the Command of the second Division to a Lieutenant, with these Orders, that as soon as he began the Fire, that he the said Lieutenant should open his Men to the right and left, and surround the Indian Fire, and distress the Flanks and Rear: Then Capt. Baylis marched on with great Precaution, to prevent being drawn into an Ambuscade, when a Gun was fired by the Indians in or near their Center, posted behind a long Bank and many lying Trees; Capt. Baylis discovered their Design, and altered the Position of his Men, and extended them to the right and left as far as the Number would admit, to prevent being flanked; the Indians discovering he had disappointed them, immediately fired upon him and his Men; upon which the Lieutenant, with the second Division, ran off. Capt. Baylis ordered the Men in the first Division to Tree and squat, and not fire until they were sure of doing Execution, which they punctually obeyed: Capt. Baylis ordered the Lieutenant and his Men to halt, which the Men obeyed, and it's thought would have returned, but they say their Lieutenant ordered them otherwise; which the Indians, in some Measure, discovered, and immediately endeavoured to run in upon Capt. Baylis, and eleven or twelve Men, which were all he had with him, who fought bravely with their Captain, charged the Indians properly according to Orders, killed four of the Enemy dead on the Spot, and wounded several more. Capt. Baylis lost not one of his Men, had only three wounded, and in Spite of all the Indians could do, he brought off his Men by a regular Retreat from Tree to Tree, and often facing about, which actually prevented the Indians from rushing in upon so small a Number, which stood by their Captain bravely, against the Power of 60 or 70 of the Enemy. The same Day Capt. Baylis went out again after the Enemy, discovered where the Indians had fell, and where great Quantities of Blood had spouted out of each Side of them, and dragged about 30 or 40 Yards, and then carried away, wrapt up in their Match-Coats, to prevent being track'd by the Blood; one of which he found securely hid, wrapt up in the same Manner, and scalpt him; he was a very large Fellow, upwards of 6 Feet, had on a Holland Shirt, and many Trinkets of Silver, and Beeds of Wampum, was observed to be very active in the Action, and supposed by his Air of Command to be an Officer: There were in this Action several Men with very white Thighs, and looked clearer in Paint than the Indians, and supposed to be Frenchmen. It is supposed the rest of the Indians will be found in a Day or two, if not carried too far, or sunk in Water.

Capt. Henry Carroll, in the Ship Concord, is arrived in Patuxent from London, and informs us, That the Hessians were arrived and landed at Southampton, the Day before he left Portsmouth, which was the 20th of May last.

We hear from Fort-Cumberland, That as a small Party were going from thence, they were met with by by a Party of Indians, who were returning from the Frontiers of Pennſylvania with Plunder, who fired on our Men and killed five of them.
